How can I connect data from all sources— without advanced coding?

Turning data into trusted insights requires unifying all relevant information into a single, consistent source of truth. This is a barrier for many companies as they want to know: How can we simplify data integration while maintaining quality?

Business and IT executives realize the myriad problems caused by data silos and having information scattered across their organization. As a result, they're asking business-critical questions:

- How can we integrate data from existing and emerging sources without time-consuming processes and advanced skills?

- How can we make unified data easily accessible to all analysts and apps in real time?

Is there a modern technology solution that ends data chaos and supports a data-driven culture by providing a trusted source of data to all users and applications? And can that solution span on-prem, the cloud, and hybrid environments?

The solution? Actian DataConnect

Actian DataConnect integrates data from a variety of sources— without requiring advanced coding skills. More than 200 pre-built connectors enable barrier-free access to cloud and on-premises systems, databases, and BI and analytic tools. Available on-premises or within the Actian Data Platform, DataConnect provides automated, intuitive, and reusable integrations.

The comprehensive enterprise data integration solution:

- Unifies data and gets it to analysts and apps in real time. DataConnect processes data in both batch and real time. You can transform, cleanse, and enrich data at the speed you need.

- Ensures data quality. Built-in validation rules and automated quality checks give you confidence that the data reaching your applications is accurate and reliable.

- Ingests, transforms, and automates data pipelines, with or without code. Map data from its source to its target destination in just a few clicks to deliver trusted data where it's needed. Data users who prefer pro-code have that option too, for complex integrations.

- Leverages automation capabilities to accelerate data processes. Reduce manual intervention and ensure smooth integration across your systems.

- Simplifies data integration and management. Enable any data user to connect critical data sources without relying on IT experts.

Unlock real-time data connectivity and transformation with DataConnect— no advanced coding required. You can quickly build powerful and frictionless connections between data sources and applications.

About Actian DataConnect

Actian DataConnect is a robust platform for enterprise data integration that excels in unifying and delivering data to users and applications in real time. It drives faster decision-making, reduces latency in data delivery, and ensures that every department is working with up-to-date, unified data. Find out more at: actian.com/data-integration/dataconnect/